After issuing a statement declaring the intentions of the United States to force reparation, "whenever and wherever the dignity of the United States is flouted," President Wilson bent all the The President's statement, issued after a Cabinet conference, in reply to the message received from the Constitutionalist chief Carranza, declared that "we are now dealing only with those whom Huerta commands and those who come to his support."

From dawn to-day the wearied chiefs of the War and Navy Departments, Secretary of State Bryan and the other Cabinet officials hurried a conference to conference. It was expected that a formal declaration war might come from the Mexican Dictator at any minute.

The fact that Charge O'Shaughnessy had been handed his passports by Gen. Huerta added an acute aspect to the situation, but has been more or less expected. The interests of the United States will be looked after by one or two of the other foreign legations, as was the case in Spain during the last war. Reports that Mr. O'Shaughnessy had reached Vera Cruz were not credited by the State Department.

Concerning the Carranae note of defiance, Mr. Bryan refused to mesk. He was asked whether the embargo on arms across the Texas berder had been imposed to shut off the revolutionists. He replied that M had wot

Secretary Daniels remained in consultation with the President to dedo what orders should be given the navy. There is a strong insistence by the navy and army experts that a quick forward movement should to made out of Vera Cruz to seize the bridges on the railroad about fifteen miles from the city. These bridges if destroyed would cause great inconvenience and delay to the troops.

DANIELS WANTS TO TAKE BRIDGES.

Secretary Daniels urged the President to authorize the marines and the jackets in Vera Cruz to take these bridges before it is too late.

The War Department has completed the draft of a call for 250,000 funteers. It will not be issued until necessary but most of the officials lieve the necessity will soon arrive. The President, however, does not this position and has written a number of Senators and Representathe who have already tendered their services that he believes the regular seess of the country can successfully cope with any situation that may

Officials here believe that Huerta has a formal declaration of war mady, but so far they have not received notification of its issuance. Besee of the fragmentary state of communication with the Mexican capital, hay do not know whether the Dictator has taken the matter up with the can Congress. His attitude was clearly set forth in his statement of less less night, in which he said war was on and promised to have an may of 400,000 men in the field in twenty days.

It is reliably reported here that Huerta and Carranza have already has in communication. Officials say they expect Huerta will issue an proclamation couched in the broadest terms holding out the branch to the Constitutionalists and demanding that they present a Late reports from Consular Agent Carothers indicate growing Serth of Mexico and particularly in the neighborhood of Chihuahua, many Americans have elected to remain in charge of their a business interests and in disregard of preceding warnings from American consular officers, relying upon the supposed good will the Constitutionalists.

A danger spot has developed rapidly at Fort Bliss, where, owing the diversion of a large proportion of the American garrison to border points, the 5,000 Mexican internes, composed of the ral soldiers and their wives who fled from Oiinaga some months are within a barbed wire enclosure, insufficiently guarded. The us of these internes is likely to be changed very soon to that of seners of war, and it is the intention of the War Department to them to a point sufficiently distant from the border to insure safekeeping as soon as the necessary funds are forthcoming.
